

Jessica Breving

English 1001

Dr. Andrus

12/05/19

Rationale and Reflection

In major assignment three I was in a research group with three other classmates. Our research was mainly over literacy sponsors. A literacy sponsor is someone who has made a positive impact (role model) in your literacy life. Usually ones literacy sponsor is a family member, a close friend, and even parents. As a group we researched out these literacy sponsors impacted ones younger literacy life. After completing this assignment we were then told to move on the major assignment four. This assignment we were told to take our major assignment three outside the group and take the topic and further explain it another audience.

I chose to continue on the topic of literacy sponsors. I made one of my project genres into a newsletter. My newsletter is a newsletter for parents, sorta like a weekly parent subscription. For this newsletter I choose to inform parents or guardians with information on how they are or even could make a better impact on their children. For my second genre I have not quite picked what I wanted to do. I am thinking about making it a multi genre or maybe making a brochure.

The reason I continued on with the topic of literacy sponsors is for many reasons. I feel as if the reason I am so successful in life and grew up not absolutely dreading reading and writing is due to my supportive literacy sponsors. My literacy sponsor are my family and my younger elementary school teachers. At a young age I was taught how to read and write. When I wasn't even in school or even preK my aunt was teaching me how to make out sounds of letters. My point in sharing this information with you is because I feel as if literary sponsors are the reason I am how I am. So with some research and factual information I want to help other parents and/or guardians the importance of being a part of a child's literacy life.